Art Unit: 3733

1. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 21, 22, 24, 38-41, 44-49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rorabaugh in view of Bridenbaugh.

Rorabaugh discloses a support structure (37), and a tread base rotatably attached to the support structure such that the tread base is selectively moveable between an operating position and a storage position (col. 4, lines 50-57).

Rorabaugh does not disclose a motor attached to the treadbase located forward of the pivot pin.

Bridenbaugh discloses a motor located forward of the pivot point (fig. 1).

It would have been obvious to use Bridenbaugh's location of the motor with Rorabaugh's treadmill and motor, as it is well known, as taught by Bridenbaugh, to have a motor located in front of a pivot point in folding mechanism, for providing a counterweight to the lifting mechanism, and as it is well known to use multiple types of weights for providing a counterbalancing means.

Art Unit: 3733

As for claims 38-41, Bridenbaugh further disclose an electric motor controlling mechanism locate forward the pivot point (77), the motor has a weight and biased the base in the storage position (fig. 1), lift assist means connected between the support structure and the base for assisting a user comprising a pneumatic cylinder (col. 3, lines 27-54).

As for claim 45, Rorabaugh does not disclose his flywheel (30) is located forward of the pivot point, however given the above obviousness it would have been further obvious to have the flywheel located forward the pivot point.

4. Claim 42 and 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rorabaugh in view of Bridenbaugh as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Teague, Jr.

Rorabaugh does not disclose a gas spring connected between the support structure and the tread base.

Teague, Jr. discloses a gas spring (56) used for assisting the lifting of a bed base (2) into a support structure (fig. 1).

It would have been obvious to use Teague, Jr's gas spring with Rorabaugh, as it is well known to use a gas spring between a support structure and a base, as taught by Teague, Jr., to provide an assist in moving the support structure into a storage position.

Art Unit: 3733

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. Claim 43 and 51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rorabaugh in view of Bridenbaugh as applied to the claims above, and further in view of Schoneneberger.

Rorabaugh and Teague, Jr. do not specifically detail a latch for securing the folding device.

Schoneneberger discloses a conventional latch means for securing a tread base when in the storage position (col. 2, lines 14-18).

It would have been obvious to use Schoneneberger's catch means when Rorabaugh and Bridenbaugh's are in the storage position, as it is well known to use a latch means, as taught by Schoneneberger, for holding a base frame in a storage position.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Guilbault disclose a sleeping bed combined with an exercise treadmill, which uses a lift assist for aiding a user in the lifting of the bed.
